

Opening Presentation Description

Opening statement may very well be the most important part of the trial. At no other time is the jury more attentive and receptive to your case. Why is the opening statement so important? This presentation will outline why the opening statement is a critical element of any jury trial.

Direct Examination Description:

Direct examination is the heart of your case. It is the fulcrum of the trial – the aspect upon which all else turns. Direct examination is your opportunity to present the substance of your case. This presentation will help you plan a persuasive story by eliciting the essential testimony of your witnesses.
